

SWITCHPLACE NAMED A FINALIST FOR TWO EMMA AWARDS

DALLAS, TEXAS (July 18, 2011) – Switchplace, a U.S.-based temporary housing company, today announced it has been shortlisted in two categories of the prestigious Expatriate Management and Mobility Awards (EMMAs), presented annually by the U.K.-based Forum for Expatriate Management (FEM).

This year, the company is in the running for EMMAs in the Corporate Housing Provider of the Year and Best Vendor Partner categories. According to Stacie Groce, managing director of client services at Switchplace, participation in the 2011 competition enables the company to accomplish multiple goals and builds off of its success in the 2010 award program.

“This year, we challenged ourselves to position Switchplace for recognition beyond the company’s leadership in providing corporate housing and, as a result, our capabilities in collaboration are also being considered for an EMMA,” said Groce. “Earning a spot on the shortlist for two EMMA awards not only illustrates the breadth and depth of our capabilities, but also demonstrates our core capacity to identify and accomplish stretch goals that we set for Switchplace as we support businesses and their employees in transition.”

The EMMA Awards celebrate excellence and innovation in global mobility programs, recognizing the performance of service providers in supporting the ambitions of corporate programs. Judging criteria for entries include client communication, innovation, knowledge, skills and industry expertise. According to FEM, the EMMAs are the Oscars of the global mobility profession and winning an EMMA is the ultimate recognition of professional excellence.

The Forum for Expatriate Management received more than 200 nominations from corporate and service provider members of the international professional organization. Switchplace is one of five organizations to be shortlisted for the Corporate Housing Provider of the Year award and one of ten being considered for the Best Vendor Partnership award. Entries in this award competition come from the leading U.S. service providers in the global mobility industry. For more information on the EMMAs, visit www.totallyexpat.com.

About Switchplace

Switchplace is a global temporary housing company that provides transitional accommodations and related services to support businesses and their employees during relocation, business travel, temporary assignments and a variety of project-related needs. Founded in 1998, the certified woman-owned business continues to customize and expand its offerings to meet the changing needs of corporate and individual clients. For more information about Switchplace, visit www.Switchplace.com.